A vicious cur dog, the property of Minnie Stevens, of North Indianapolis, bit Mrs. Mary Burckdall and her little daughter last Monday. Mrs. Burckdall slezed a spade handle and beat the dog to death in the presence of eighteen witnesses. Yesterday she was arrested on the charge of cruelty to animals preferred by Mrs. Stevens. She eaded guilty to the charge and was fined cent and costs by Justice Lockman. Mrs. Burckdall took this course in order to avoid paying about $18 in witness fees, which she would doubtiess have been compelled to do if the case had been tried. She will probably retaliate by filing a suit for damages against Mrs. Stevens, who owned and harbored the dog. CHAMPIONS, 6; MILLERS, 4. Phillips's Great Head Work at

Critical Juncture. There are lots of people who are not missing an inning of the great ball the champions are putting up these pleasant afternoons. Yesterday the crowd numbered nearly 2,000, and it saw Indianapolis take the first game from the Millers as handily as could be destred. Though the champions led from the third inning and had increased their lead to respectable proportions by the end of the sixth, they needed all the runs they got, for Wilmot's men made a whipping finish, They loomed up ominously in the eighth and ninth innings, and the fight was redhot right up to the close. With the bases filled in the ninth it needed only a safe tap to tle and a two-base hit to wrest the game from Indianapolis. Phillips, however, sent them over so fast that Schriver, who had already hit him for a triple and a single, struck out, to the intense relief of the crowd. Phillips pitched great ball up to the eighth inning, when his bad fumble of Wilmot's under so upset him that the Miller rapped out a double and three singles before he could recover his effectiveness. Things were moving along swimmingly in the ninth, when Motz let Wilmot's grounder get away from him. Two bases on balls followed and the "fans" were in agony, but Schriver struck out and the percentage of the champions climbed several points higher.

OUTFIELDERS HAD TO WORK. The outfielders of both teams had a busy time of it, twenty-one putouts in all being credited to them. Of the eleven putouts by the Minneapolis outfield Wilmot had seven, several of them very hard chances. His work was unusually fine, and was among the features of the game. The champions gave Phillips excellent support, the only error that cost anything being his own. He was well backed up at all stages and pulled out of some pretty ugly holes. Twice did the Millers have the bases filled and good hitters up. The first time was in the fifth ning, and Perry Werden drove a vicious gave the crowd a chance to cut loose. The other instance was in the ninth and it has already been referred to. It took a double play to save the game in that "scary hth inning, so that the afternoon was no means a picnic for "Big Bill" Phillips and his fellow-players.

Hutchinson was hit hard when the number of difficult chances accepted by Wilmot and Frank is taken into consideration. He was steady, however, and effective at stages when the champions were bidding for runs and the defeat cannot be charged to him. It was his support that gave the game to Indianap-olis. Ball, at short, is far from being a sec-ond Hulen. Kuehne was erratic in his work and there was some had throwing from the outsield, though that might have been saved had the throws being properly backed up.

Indianapolis failed to score in the first, though the three batters who were up serve notice on Hutchinson that they were going to get better acquainted with his curves. Connor started the last half with a single to left and ran himself out at second trying to make a double of it. Lally got a base on balls and Wilmot a safe hit to center. Werden's fly to McCarthy scored Lally and Frank flew to Hogan.

THE SCORE SOON TIED. Indianapolis soon had the score tied, for Stewart led off in the second with a single to right center and Motz advanced him with a grounder to Werden. Wood's fly to right sent him to third and when Frank threw the ball in it bounded through the diamond and over near the Indianapolis bench. Stewart started home and Kuehne recovered the ball in time to have easily caught him on the line, but there were so many Minneapolis players around the plate that Schriver became confused and failed to touch Stewart. as he coasted in on his shirt front. Hogan pulled in front of their opponents. Shiebeck's short fly to left was good for two bases. Philips fouled to Kuehne and Hogriever flew to Wilmot. Roat cracked out a single to right, scoring Shiebeck and McCarthy followed with a two-bagger to left. Stewart flew to Frank. Motz hit safe to center in the fourth and Wilmot's fumble enabled him to make second, though it took a clever slide to land him there. Wood limped to section the farm.—Columbus (O.) Journal.

It is claimed that the Grand Rapids games ond on his long drive to left, which scored Motz. Hogan's out at first advanced Wood a base and he scored on Ball's fumble of Phill!ps's grounder, Shiebeck having previously fouled to Schriver. Hogriever flew to Connor. With two out in the sixth In-dianapolis managed to pick up the runs nec-essary to win the game. Kuehne fumbled Shiebeck's grounder and Phillips hit to right for a base. Frank's throw again got away from the infield and Shiebeck scored, Phillips reaching second. Hogriever sent a safe one to right center and Phillips scored. Wilmot throwing over Schriver's head so far that George thought he could make third. He George thought he could make third. He was thrown out at that base, however.

There was a bright prospect in the seventh, when Roat got a single and Kuehne threw McCarthy's grounder badly to first. Roat reached third on the error and, with nobody out, there seemed no doubt that the Indianapolis score would be increased. Mac started for second and the ball went down, while Roat broke for home, only to find the ball awaiting him. Conner having returned it awaiting him, Connor having returned it quickly. The next two men were disposed of speedily, though Motz gave Wilmot a great chase for his long fly. Two singles in the Enth, with nobody out, gave the champions another pretty chance to score. Roat sacrificed, but McCarthy's short fly to Wilmot made it impossible for Phillips to come in and Stewart fouled to Kuehre. in and Stewart fouled to Kuehne.

Ball got around to third in the fifth on his single, a steal, which the umpire helped him to, as Stewart bumped him in the ribs with the ball before he ever reached second, and a passed ball. Hutchinson flew to Hogan before Ball reached third. Connor and Wilmot got bases on balls, Lally striking out. Werden relieved the pressure by flying to Hogan. After Phillips had tried in vain to pick up Wilmot's little grounder in the eighth Werden. Frank, Schriver and Kuehne lined the hall left and right for three runs. Ball hit to Phillips, who threw Schriver out at third and Hutchinson's grounder to Stewart resulted in a double play. Conner and Lally flew to McCarthy in the ninth, and it looked easy until Motz missed Wilmot's grounder, and Werden and Frank reached first on balls. Schriver struck-out, however, and there were howls of joy. Score:
